Today's Agenda

Personal injuries and illnesses arising out of work situations impose a substantial burden upon, and are a hindrance to, interstate commerce in terms of lost production, wage loss, medical expenses, and disability compensation payments.

The OSH Act of 1970 was established to assure safe and healthful conditions for working individuals.

This two day course will provide valuable insight on complying with OSHA standards, rules and regulations as to avert violations, citations and costly civil penalties to an organization or individual.

- Introduction to OSHA
- OSHA Act - General Duty Clause
- Clause 5(a)(1), Inspections, Citations & Penalties (CFR Part 1903)
- Subpart O: Machine Guarding
- Subpart I: Personal Protective Equipment
- Subpart E & L: Means of Egress & Fire Protection
- Subpart S: Electrical
- Subpart D: Walking & Working Surfaces
- Subpart J: Energy Control Procedures/Lockout/Tag-Out

Participants will earn a 10-Hour OSHA General Industry Training Completion Card.

Our insurance and risk management teams are comprised of highly experienced individuals with diverse insurance industry backgrounds, each providing special skills and insights in the resolution of complex business issues.

Our Risk Control, Claims & RMIS Group's consulting approach recognizes that financial results (trailing indicators) will only come when underlying risk management quality and performance (leading indicators) are improved. Our unique approach identifies, quantifies, and seeks to improve the underlying factors that will improve an organization's financial and business performance.
